

Dear admission committee

I am writing to express my interest in studying at the Harvard University as a MA in Economics Department student. Thank you in advance for taking the time to read my letter.

I am currently studying for a bachelor's degree in Economics at Renmin University. I have decided to apply to your MA in Economics Department programme because I am sure it would strongly enrich my future studies and help me in my prospective career. Moreover, I consider this programme as a great opportunity to get to know America culture and its well-developed logistic background. I am also very curious about the different approaches taken in this field at a prominent university.

My current undergraduate studies make me highly suitable for this programme. I have learned the basic foundations of economics through courses such as Microeconomics, Macroeconomics, and economics. I have also taken mathematics and statistics to help me understand data problems. And I have a proficiency in programming languages like python and sql, which equips me with work efficiency.

In addition to my academic interests, I have a full and interesting life off-campus. I was a member of our school choir, which won golden wards in Beijing College Students Music Festival. I also have a wealth of student work experience. I worked as a deputy minister at the Youth Volunteer Association and organized many events.

In conclusion, I am very eager to study MA in Economics Department at the Harvard University, as it would give me a chance to deepen my skills and knowledge in one of the field's top universities. I am confident I excel in this programme due to my solid educational foundation in business and personality strengths.

Thank you again for reading my personal statement. I look forward to hearing from you.
